

No More Games • Net — 9/11

Reynolds Makes a Federal Case of 9/11 Sues NIST Contractors for 9/11 Plane

Morgan Reynolds
August 21, 2007

- Home
- Recent Articles
- Economics
- Politics
- 9/11
- Other Conspiracies

Summary:

Last month the U.S. District Court, Southern New York, unsealed a 9/11 case Reynolds, thereby making the case public. Reynolds is suing on behalf of the America after the U. S. Attorney for the Southern District of New York who "declined to intervene in the case. The suit, a so-called qui tam case against 9/11 contractors NIST hired to investigate destruction of the WTC Towers on behalf of the U.S. government of substantial money by rendering bogus, impossible physical animations about how two hollow aluminum aircraft (allegedly Boeing 767s) hit the steel/concrete tower and disappeared. Yet it can be easily demonstrated, after work by dedicated 9/11 researchers, that no planes hit the towers. The office of Jerry V. Leaphart of Connecticut, is now serving(notifying) the defendants in the case: Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC), Applied Research Associates, Boeing, American Airlines, United Airlines and Silverstein Properties. I will be following the case as developments warrant.

Unsealed Complaint PDF here.

00217326

Visits to my site!

 The 9/11 Files Topsites

Copyright Morgan Reynolds 2006+ unless otherwise specified. Distribution of the articles on this website is strongly encouraged, as long as they are not manipulated or distorted in anyway.

